

Strategic HR Consultancy

Many organisations have a small HR department, or a busy manager who handles HR as one part of their job. This usually means that the staff concerned are flat-out busy just managing the day to day demands of their work and don't have time to make strategic interventions.

Two of our consultants are members of the UK's Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development (CIPD). We are able to support you on a part-time basis with strategic HR systems development and coaching of your HR team in all of the CIPD's recommended areas of professional competence:¹

"We are so pleased we decided to use The Leadership Team's consultant. The value added was huge and we are very pleased with the whole outcome. The consultant was entirely professional and engaging in her dealings - our staff enjoyed working with her and learned from the whole process themselves. The consultant always turned up on time and always delivered on agreed targets with well written reports and updates. We will definitely look to use The Leadership Team again!"
